

IIDA Program Tour:

Texas A&M Health Science Center

Round Rock Campus

The Round Rock campus of the Texas A&M Health Science Center was developed by a public-private partnership on the Avery Ranch by Facilities Development Group and Texas A&M HSC. The first building lays the groundwork for the 50 acre campus in architectural vernacular and planning. The 134,000 square foot project explores the idea of how current technologically-rich medical education is highly interactive and is critically intertwined with public health research and person to person care.

Architecture by Graeber Simmons and Cowan and Interiors by Harmony Edwards Interior Design. The one hour tour will stop at public, student, clinic, administrative and simulation areas.
