

Digital Design Magazine Seeks Submissions

Varvana.com is a new digital design magazine showcasing the most beautiful houses and apartments in the nation. When it launches this spring, Varvana will allow readers to peruse thousands of upscale interiors culled from the portfolios of the nation's top designers and architects. Readers will be able to use the site to shop for a design professional, get decorating ideas, discover new products, and enjoy tours of exclusive trade fairs and show houses.

Varvana is soliciting photographs of recent residential projects for inclusion on the site. There is no charge to show your work on Varvana, making it a great way to market your services and share your portfolio with a wider audience. (Previously published projects are welcome.) Qualifying homes must be well-furnished, professionally photographed, and should feature at least five completed spaces. Homeowners can remain anonymous, and every photo will be accompanied by the designer's name and a link to his or her Web site.
